

Mr. Dada Samson Adewale (Nigeria)

(psalmist87@gmail.com)

Born on 27th August 1987 in Kwara State, a graduate of Economics from the University of Ilorin, Nigeria and also studied “The Challenges of Global Poverty in International Development” offered by MIT edX, USA, my aim is to pursue my post graduate Studies in Economics and a Ph.D. in International Development Economics.

Since December 2012, I am the President of Born to Shine Teens Outreach, and so far, I have created a positive impact for teens in rural and urban centers in Nigeria and Niger Republic.

I am passionate about building Unstoppable City Builders, youth peace ambassadors, re-orienting teens who are sexually abused, drug addiction, school drop-outs and helping underprivileged teens to apply for scholarships.

During my National Youth Service Corps, I served as a Graduate Assistant at Adekunle Ajasin University, Akungba Akoko, Ondo State, 2011-2012, trained as a United Nations Millennium Development Goals Knowledge Facilitator, and I was able to train 310 School Pupils at Akungba Akoko, Ondo State Nigeria. There, I implemented an Action plan on Universal Basic Education by distributing books to pupils, Ben Carson’s book for Teens and paying school fees of primary school pupil from underprivileged home.

I am passionate in reaching out to teens across Nigeria and African countries, every teens is born to shine!
