I'm Faidh Husnan. I was born in a teachers family but now I'm studying medicine, at the Jenderal Soedirman University, the Medical Faculty. Maybe when you read this, I have become a doctor. Since my first university year, I have developed a passion for leadership and other soft skills. In my second year, I became the president of the medical student executive board, while in the third year, the chief of medical Muslim student association.

I have attended several international peace events such as for example the World Congress International Physician for Prevention Nuclear War (IPPNW) in Hiroshima, and the Fifth YPA in Thailand. Nowadays, I am the member of IPPNW as national representative for Indonesian students.
