WHERE?

Migratory birds flocking over the sanctuary of JLU lake beside Jahanara Imam Hall

WHY?

Jahangirnagar University, Dhaka, Bangladesh

- To start with educated people
- To start working locally
- JU is the only residential university in Bangladesh
- It is called the GREEN CAMPUS-
- To set an example so that others can follow
- It is in Dhaka, the capital city

WHO? (Target group)

12,000 students and
400 faculties of the University and
5000 students of "Jahangirnagar University
School and College"

HOW? And WHEN?

First Step:

clean up (January 2012 to February 2012)

Second step:

awareness rising through poster, leaflet, banner, documentary screening, seminar, (January 2012 to September 2012)

Third Step:

Making it a habit (Doing follow-up every six month)

Rationale of this project

Over six million people live in Dhaka and each day they produce over 3,000 tons of household waste. Yet the Dhaka City Corporation collects less than half of it. The rest remains on roadsides, in open drains and in low-lying areas. This has a negative impact on the city's environment. We can't change everyone and everything but we can set an example to follow.

The main reasons of taking this project are...

- ❖ People are not aware enough
- ❖ Worst waste management system
- ❖ Think Globally, Act Locally

Objectives and Goals

- To make habit within 2012
- awareness building among the mass people
- make common conscious to put/through waste in right place

Feasibility of the project

Obstacles:

- It's hard to break the existing system. May be my fellows will be making fun of us
- Finance
- Always hard to motivate people to break their old habit

Possible solution: ...do it anyway
