

Mr. Theerawee Guradetphop, (Thailand)

(tg34728@gmail.com)

Having obtained a BA in International Relations, I could say that I am familiar with the concepts of peace, especially in the implication that peace means the absence of conflict, or arms conflict to be precise. I would also say that such peace is achievable even though it may not be possible in our generation, we should always keep in mind that it is an end in itself, the most desirable objective of the society of humans. Thus, peace building is one of the issues I entertain with passion; the idea that such state of tranquility looks neither near nor far from us makes it even more alluring to me.

To further elaborate my point I would like to venture further in to the details of my life; during my mere existence in the world I have faced a certain degree of conflict almost all the time. Conflicts exist in all facades of life. In my point of view, conflict should not be rated as a force of evilness; it should be recognized as a stepping stone towards reconciliation between two different theses. By bearing this kind of idea in mind I learn to live peacefully during conflicted situations, learn to be calm and considerate.

Apart from my passion in peace building, I used to hold an administrative position in the faculty's student organization for two consecutive academic years and to add the artistic aspect into my life, I also serve as a chorus member. I have participated in several operatic productions by Opera Siam foundation.